

Contents

List of tables and figures	10
Abbreviations	12
Preface and acknowledgements	13
Chapter 1
Introduction	17
1.1 Starting point and context of the study	17
1.2 Objectives and approach	20
1.3 Multi-country comparison	22
1.4 Evaluation and overall analytical perspective	24
Part I
Industrial relations in the transition economies of Central and Eastern Europe
A comparative analysis	27
Chapter 2
Political and economic framework	29
2.1 Political transition and democratic consolidation	32
2.2 Economic transition and convergence	36
2.3 Comparative categories: country groups and transition behaviour	44
2.4 New forms and levels of action: social dialogue and compromise through negotiation	46

Chapter 3
Collective labour law	49
3.1 Estonia	52
3.2 Latvia	59
3.3 Lithuania	66
3.4 Poland	71
3.5 Czech Republic	79
3.6 Slovak Republic	83
3.7 Hungary	88
3.8 Slovenia	93
3.9 Comparison of collective employment law in the CEE-8	97
Chapter 4
Workplace industrial relations and employee representation	103
4.1 Estonia	104
4.2 Latvia	109
4.3 Lithuania	113
4.4 Poland	118
4.5. Czech Republic	127
4.6 Slovak Republic	137
4.7 Hungary	142
4.8 Slovenia	153
4.9 Workplace industrial relations in the CEE-8: a comparison	164
Chapter 5
Sectoral industrial relations and collective bargaining	175
5.1 Estonia	176
5.2 Latvia	180

5.3 Lithuania	185
5.4 Poland	191
5.5 Czech Republic	197
5.6 Slovak Republic	200
5.7 Hungary	204
5.8 Slovenia	209
5.9 Comparison of sectoral-level industrial relations in the CEE-8	216

Chapter 6

Industrial relations and tripartism at national and regional level

Characteristics of the social partners	231
6.1 Estonia	232
6.2 Latvia	240
6.3 Lithuania	246
6.4 Poland	256
6.5 Czech Republic	265
6.6 Slovak Republic	271
6.7 Hungary	275
6.8 Slovenia	282
6.9 Tripartite industrial relations in the CEE-8: a comparison	288

Chapter 7

Profiles and developmental trends in industrial relations in the new EU member states

A comparison	295
7.1 Shortcomings and opportunities	297
7.2 Industrial relations flexibility in enterprises and workplaces	300
7.3 The patchiness of industrial relations at sectoral level	302

7.4 The dual face of tripartism	306
7.5 Diverse behavioural profiles	307

Part II

East-West comparison of industrial relations in the context of EU integration	313
--	------------

Chapter 8

Industrial relations in Western Europe

Models, developments, Europeanisation	315
--	------------

8.1 Basic types of national industrial relations in Western Europe	317
--	-----

8.2 Institutional developments and changes in industrial relations in Western Europe	320
--	-----

8.3 Collective bargaining systems	328
---	-----

8.4 Europeanisation of national industrial relations in the EU	336
--	-----

Chapter 9

Trans- and supranationalisation of industrial relations in the EU	341
--	------------

9.1. Multi-sectoral social dialogue	342
---	-----

9.2 Sectoral social dialogues	345
-------------------------------------	-----

9.3 Cross-border collective bargaining co-ordination	348
--	-----

9.4 European Works Councils	351
-----------------------------------	-----

9.5 EU employment policy and the method of “open co-ordination”	355
---	-----

Chapter 10

A comparison of Western European and CEE industrial relations

Growing diversity and prospects for Europeanisation	357
--	------------

10.1 The “transition model” of industrial relations	358
---	-----

10.2 Status and prospects for Europeanisation	363
---	-----

Part III

Industrial relations in an enlarged EU and the European Social Model

Introduction 367

Chapter 11

The European Social Model as a historical social formation

National comparisons 369

Chapter 12

The European Social Model as a project for political and economic integration 377

Chapter 13

Prospects for transnational industrial relations in an enlarged EU ... 383

Chapter 14

Prerequisites and vistas of successful EU integration 391

Bibliography 403

Index 419