Changing labour markets and international organisations

Contents

Editorial
Maria Jepsen

Main Articles

Reviewing the 2018 OECD Jobs Strategy – anything new under the sun? 149
Stephen McBride and James Watson

Job quality in European employment policy: one step forward, two steps back? 165
Agnieszka Piasna, Brendan Burchell and Kirsten Sehnbruch

International organisations and the role of collective bargaining 181
Roberto Pedersini

Special Section

Ensuring universal social protection for the future of work 205
Christina Behrendt and Quynh Anh Nguyen

The revised OECD Jobs Strategy and labour market flexibility: a double-handed narrative 221
Ronald Janssen

News and Background

The creation and future of the new Danish trade union confederation 229
Søren Kaj Andersen and Nana Wesley Hansen

Digitalisation, work environment and personal integrity at work 235
Anna Spånt Enbuske
Book Reviews

Mariana Mazzucato
The Value of Everything: Making and Taking in the Global Economy
Reviewed by: Martin Myant

Ann-Christine Hartzén
The European Social Dialogue in Perspective: Its Future Potential as an Autopoietic System and Lessons from the Global Maritime System of Industrial Relations
Reviewed by: John Paterson

A new society takes shape within the framework of the old: loose and unfree
Line Eldring and Elin Ørjasæter
Løsarbeidersamfunnet [Society of the casual worker]
Reviewed by: Jonas Bals

A look back at David Ost — The impact of anger on post-communist transitions to democracy
David Ost
The defeat of solidarity: anger and politics in postcommunist Europe
Reviewed by: Collin Covington

Coordinator of this issue: Maria Jepsen