EU directive on minimum wages
October 28, 2020

The European Commission proposed an EU directive to ensure that workers in the EU are protected by adequate minimum wages allowing for a decent living. The proposal also aims at promoting collective bargaining on wages in all Member States. The Commission’s proposal will now go to the European Parliament and Council for approval. Once adopted, Member States will have two years to transpose the directive into national law. The ETUC welcomes the proposal as ‘a positive step’ but sees the need for improvements. BusinessEurope rejects the proposal and considers it a ‘recipe for disaster’.
Issuing of SURE social bonds
October 21, 2021

The European Commission issued a €17 billion inaugural social bond under the EU SURE instrument to help protect jobs and keep people in work. The €17 billion consists of two bonds, with €10 billion due for repayment in October 2030 and €7 billion in 2040.

Launch of flagship report on social dialogue
October 20, 2020

The OECD launched the 2020 Global Deal Flagship Report “Social Dialogue, Skills and COVID-19” and presented the key findings of the report as well the commitments made by Global Deal partners. This second Global Deal Flagship Report illustrates the importance of social dialogue in managing the consequences of the coronavirus pandemic, as well as the benefits of involving social partners in adult-learning systems to prepare for the future of work. It emphasises the role that social dialogue has to play in promoting lifelong learning and skills development.

Trade unions call for ban on unpaid internships

Unemployment will rise due to second lockdown
October 30, 2020

The ‘lockdown light’ is expected to increase the unemployment rate, but the extent will depend on the measures taken. The Public Employment Service (AMS) and the Ministry of Labour are preparing for a sharp rise of unemployment to more than 500,000. The AMS is increasing the number of employees due to the corona crisis. Should the social partners agree on changes to short-time work, then the AMS can also process this retrospectively.

Bonus for unemployed
October 21, 2020

The government announced that it will support more people who have lost their jobs recently with unemployment benefits. This applies to people who were unemployed in September, October or November. Someone who was unemployed for 15 days during this period will receive €150, someone who was unemployed for 30 days will receive €300, and people who have had no job for 45 days receive a bonus of €450. In total, the government has a budget of €200 million for these payments, and 410,000 people are expected to be affected.

Bonus for healthcare staff
October 29, 2020

The government will offer a bonus of €500 to each doctor who works at a Covid-19 testing centre. The teams working at the testing centres consist of volunteers and administrative workers, as well as members of the armed forces. However, doctors are essential, because they are the only ones allowed to take the swabs. To motivate doctors to volunteer their services, the government has promised a special bonus for them.

Trade union calls for extra funds for education
October 20, 2020

Trade unions have asked the government to secure an additional €90 million for the education sector in both the 2021 and the 2022 budgets, for managing the challenges of the Covid-19 epidemic. The main committee of the SVIZ trade union of teachers and culture workers also urged the Ministry of Education to do something to neutralise what the trade union believes are growing differences among pupils due to remote teaching, as not all of them have the same conditions.

Amazon forced to give freelancers employment contract
October 15, 2020

The Labour Inspectorate has forced Amazon to give employment contracts to 4,056 delivery drivers that the online retail giant had hired in Madrid and Barcelona as “false freelancers”, according to sources familiar with the investigation and from the UGT labour union. The Spanish authorities are also demanding €6.16 million to cover the social security contributions that were not paid while the staff were providing services for the multinational in what is commonly known as the “gig economy”. The company announced that it will appeal the decision.

Plans to change social security contributions for freelancers
October 6, 2020

Self-employed workers are one step closer to paying contributions based on their real income, rather than a fixed monthly amount regardless of how much they make. The Social Security Ministry and the Tax Agency are sharing data to come up with a new system based on income brackets, similar to what has already been done with the Spanish income tax system (IRPF). Under the current system, freelancers can choose the contribution base that they want to pay a rate on. Right now, 85% of Spain’s self-employed have opted for the lowest available contribution base, which is €944.

Labour market sets positive records in September
October 2, 2020

Despite the effect the coronavirus pandemic has had on the economy, September was a record month for the labour market. The number of registered unemployed fell by 26,329, which is the highest figure since at least 1996. Meanwhile, employment grew, with 84,013 new registrations under the social security system, also the highest figure for the month of September. This was partly due to the hiring of more teachers, drafted in across the country so that schools can cope with coronavirus measures, as well as the hiring of agricultural workers.

Sweden

Revision of pension income prediction
October 26, 2020

The Pensions Agency has revised its prediction for a significant fall in the main component of the state pension, announcing the value of the income pension is set to fall by 0.5% in 2022, rather than by 2.7% as the authority had forecast earlier this year. In Sweden’s pay-as-you-go income pension system, benefits are adjusted annually according to changes in wages.

Negotiations over labour law review
October 20, 2020

Negotiations are underway over a set of hiring and firing laws, with the government hoping that an agreement with trade unions will help avoid a crisis. Discussions are underway to try to break a deadlock in talks between trade unions and employers’ organisations. The law under review is the Employment Protection Act. One of the key principles to be discussed is the “last in, first out” rule when it comes to redundancies.

Switzerland

Debate on home office work
October 23, 2020

Home office work is again recommended wherever possible by the government. But the legal and practical realities of teleworking are not so clear. According to the Swiss Employer’s Association, there is no right to home working in Switzerland. This means that an employee who decides to work from home without their employer’s permission runs the risk of sanctions. Even during the height of the pandemic, workers belonging to the most vulnerable groups could theoretically have been obliged to turn up at their place of work.

One in five workers left job last year
October 22, 2020

According to published figures on professional mobility, 19.2% of people changed, lost or left their jobs from 2018 to 2019. Just under 10% of those working in 2018 changed companies within a year, whereas almost 3% took a job within the same company. Less than 2% became unemployed and just under 5% left the workforce altogether.

One in ten young people have lost their job since pandemic outbreak
October 26, 2020

A new survey shows that more than one in ten people aged 16-25 have lost their job and just under six in ten have seen their earnings fall since the coronavirus pandemic began. The study by the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) and Exeter University found young workers to be twice as likely to have lost their jobs compared to older employees and that employment and earnings losses are more pronounced for women, the self-employed and those who grew up in a poor family.
New government scheme to pay up to half of wages
October 22, 2020

The government announced that it will increase support for jobs and workers hit by Covid-19 restrictions after growing clamour from firms in “tier two” areas, in particular the hospitality sector. The government announced big changes to the Job Support Scheme (JSS), which is set to replace furlough schemes in November. Instead of a minimum requirement of paying 55% of wages for a third of hours, as announced in September at the launch of the Winter Economic Plan, employers will now have to pay for a minimum of 20% of usual hours worked, and 5% of hours not worked.
