

List of contributors

Karen M. Anderson is associate professor of social policy at University College Dublin. Her research focuses on comparative social policy, the financialisation of welfare, and the impact of Europeanisation on national welfare states. She is the author of Social policy in the European Union (Palgrave 2015) and the editor (with Ellen M. Immergut and Isabelle Schulze) of the Handbook of West European pension politics (OUP 2007). She is currently leading a research project funded by the New Opportunities for Research Funding Agency Cooperation in Europe (NORFACE) on the governance of funded pensions, with partners in Leiden, Madrid and Linz. Contact address: karen.anderson@ucd.ie

Denis Bouget is an emeritus professor at the University of Nantes (FR) and associate researcher at both the European Social Observatory (OSE) and the European Trade Union Institute (ETUI). His recent research interests are long-term care for older people; poverty, social exclusion and minimum income; and the comparison of national social welfare systems. He was the director of the Maison des Sciences de l'Homme (MSH) in Nantes (1999–2005) and general coordinator of RECOWOE, the FP6 network of excellence (2006–2011). He co-edited the Work and welfare in Europe series for Palgrave Macmillan (2011–2019). Contact address: denis.bouget@univ-nantes.fr

Eleanor Brooks is a lecturer in health policy in the Global Health Policy Unit at the University of Edinburgh and a scientific advisor to the European Public Health Alliance (EPHA), Brussels. For the period 2020–2024 she holds a UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) Future Leaders Fellowship, studying the impact of the Better Regulation Agenda on European Union health policy, while her broader research explores the changing governance of health within the EU. Contact address: eleanor.brooks@ed.ac.uk

Anniek de Ruijter is associate professor of European law at the University of Amsterdam. She is a research fellow at the Amsterdam Centre for European Law and Governance (ACELG) and an affiliated fellow of the Amsterdam Centre for European Studies (ACES). Anniek researches the intersection of EU law, health law and policy. In 2017 she received the Veni award of The Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research for a four-year research project on improving the EU constitutional order for responding to human health disasters such as pandemics or bioterrorist attacks. Contact address: a.deruijter@uva.nl

Boris Fronteddu has been a researcher at the OSE since April 2019. He is currently working on sustainable development, social protection and socio-economic governance. He is also collaborating on the OSE's regular European health care news and on the European Digest for the Revue Belge de Sécurité Sociale (RBSS). He contributes to quality control for the European Social Policy Network (ESPN). Previously, Boris worked on international trade issues, such as the functioning of multinational businesses and free trade agreements between the EU and third countries. Contact address: fronteddu@ose.be

Dalila Ghailani has been working as a senior researcher at the OSE since 2001. She has a master's degree in law and an advanced master's in European business law. Since 2001, she has gradually extended her European law academic background to include issues in such diverse fields as employment, social protection, social inclusion, gender equality and digitalisation. She has conducted several studies for EU institutions and EU social partners, as well as co-authoring several studies for the European Social Policy Network (ESPN), most recently on in-work poverty in the EU. Contact address: ghailani@ose.be

Scott L. Greer is professor of health management and policy, global health and political science at the University of Michigan and senior expert adviser on health governance to the European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies, Brussels. He is also a member of the OSE's Scientific Advisory Board. His books include the edited collection Federalism and social policy: patterns of redistribution in eleven democracies, The European Union after Brexit, and Everything you always wanted to know about European Union health policies but were afraid to ask (second edition, 2019). Contact address: slgreer@umich.edu

Elke Heins is senior lecturer in Social Policy at the University of Edinburgh. Her research deals with comparative and European welfare state policies, with a particular focus on labour market and unemployment policy as well as the politics of welfare and wellbeing. She has published widely in these areas, including on the concept of flexicurity (with Jochen Clasen) and the impact of the Euro-crisis on welfare state governance and reform (with Caroline de la Porte). She is co-convenor of the EUROPEAN FUTURES Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence at the University of Edinburgh. Contact address: elke.heins@ed.ac.uk

Éloi Laurent is senior economist at the Sciences Po Centre for Economic Research (OFCE) in Paris. He teaches at Stanford University, Sciences Po and Pontois Paris Tech. A macroeconomist by training, his current work focuses on environmental sustainability and well-being and social ecology. Eloi Laurent is the author or editor of twenty books and one hundred articles. In 2020, he authored Et si la santé guidait le monde? L'espérance de vie vaut mieux que la croissance (Les Liens qui libèrent) and The new environmental economics: sustainability and justice (Polity Press). Contact address: eloi.laurent@sciencespo.fr

Matteo Mandelli is a PhD student in political studies at the University of Milan, where he is developing a thesis on the politics of eco-social policies. He is contributing to the projects Sustainable European welfare societies: assessing linkages between social and environmental policy and Euroship, both coordinated by OSLOMET. He previously worked as Policy Assistant with the European Anti-Poverty Network (EAPN). His research interests include eco-social policies, EU governance, energy poverty and comparative social policy. Contact address: matteo.mandelli@unimi.it

Martin Myant is emeritus professor at the University of the West of Scotland (UK) and associate researcher at the ETUI in Brussels, where he was formerly head of the research unit on European Economic, Employment and Social Policy. He has also published widely on economic and political development in east-central Europe. His publications include Transition economies: political economy in Russia, Eastern Europe, and Central Asia (with Jan Drahekoupil; Wiley-Blackwell 2011). Contact address: mmyant@etui.org

Ramón Peña-Casas is a senior researcher who joined the OSE in 2000. He holds a master's degree in social sciences and is experienced in socio-economic analysis of European issues. His main areas of interest concern the transnational monitoring and analysis of economic and social issues, looking at the human, social and political consequences of changes in the complex relationships between work, social inclusion or social protection for European policy. Contact address: penacasas@ose.be

Jill Rubery is professor of comparative employment systems and director of the Work and Equalities Institute at the University of Manchester. She is an international expert on gender and employment; she has worked extensively for the ILO and for fourteen years coordinated the European Commission's expert group on gender and employment. Her research focuses on wages, working time, precarious work, social protection and the gendered impact of crises. Recent publications include a book on women and austerity and two studies for the ILO on the gender pay gap. Contact address: jill.rubery@manchester.ac.uk

Sebastiano Sabato is senior researcher at the OSE, where he has been working since 2014. He holds a PhD in political science from the Italian Institute for Human Sciences (Florence) and worked as research fellow at the universities of Milan and Antwerp. He is a member of the scientific board of the journal Politiche Sociali/Social Policies. His research interests include EU socio-economic governance, comparative social policy, social investment and social innovation, 'eco-social policies' and sustainable development, and industrial relations. Contact address: sabato@ose.be

Slavina Spasova has been a researcher at the OSE since 2016. She holds a PhD in political science (Université Libre de Bruxelles). Her research agenda focuses on various social policy issues such as social dialogue and social protection, pension reforms, work-life balance, health care, long-term care, sickness benefits and unemployment benefits. She is the OSE's coordinator in the European Social Policy Network (ESPN). She has been a co-editor of Social policy in the European Union since 2019. Slavina is also a research associate at the ULB's Centre d'étude de la vie politique (CEVIPOL). Contact address: spasova@ose.be

Isabel Tavora is a senior lecturer in human resource management and a member of the Work and Equalities Institute at the University of Manchester. Isabel's research focuses on comparative employment policy, collective bargaining, gender equality and work-family reconciliation. Her recent publications include an edited book on Making work more equal (Manchester University Press), an ILO report on social dialogue and economic performance and a journal article on collective bargaining in Portugal in the aftermath of the previous crisis. Contact address: isabel.tavora@manchester.ac.uk

Bart Vanhercke, PhD in social science (University of Amsterdam), has been OSE director since 2010 and lead editor of Social policy in the European Union since 2016. His current research focuses on the ‘socialisation’ of the EU’s economic governance and the European Pillar of Social Rights, topics on which he also works as an associate academic staff member at the Research Institute for Work and Society (HIVA), KULeuven. He was appointed visiting professor at the College of Europe in Bruges in October 2020. He is the author of around 130 articles, chapters, edited volumes and reports. Contact address: vanhercke@ose.be