BACKGROUND

In today's world of work, trainers keep on finding better approaches to apply innovation to reshape and progress traditional learning models, achieving personal development and success in practically every training room.

Today, a significant number of the most recent pedagogical advances plan to amplify the viability of time in the training room, allowing trainers to focus on supporting learners' individual needs. Most of these new advances use technology to promote a blend of innovative training strategies, including active learning, collaborative projects, experiential learning, and traditional direct instruction (which includes lecture and demonstrations).

Next to direct instruction, active learning has been maybe the most well-known methodology used in the training room. Active learning strategies are instructional activities involving learners in doing things and thinking about what they are doing. Learners are actively or experientially involved in their learning process.

In this context, ETUI, the European Trade Union Institute, has been organizing a pedagogical workshop on active learning methodologies every year for Eurotrainers. To cope with the constantly evolving training practices, ETUI is committing to continue training its members on active learning through a new course format, fully online.

WHAT WILL I LEARN?

- What are the different active learning approaches?
- Why are multisensory environments important?
- How to define action-oriented objectives that support active learning processes?
- How to identify participatory facilitation methods and tools?
- How to recognize the importance of evaluation and applying different levels of evaluation?
- How to design a learning module by adopting active learning strategies?

HOW

WHAT LEARNING METHODOLOGIES WILL I EXPERIENCE IN THIS COURSE

There is no “one-size-fits-all” methodology or ready-made approach that will guarantee the success of a training session and make the learning experience an outstanding one. Trainers know they need to innovate and engage their audience in their learning process. Context is key and active learning is about involving learners' efforts in the training room to actively construct their knowledge.

The programme is conducted using interactive self-guided learning modules, knowledge checks, live webinars and final examination.

- For each module, you first share your thoughts and experience on the weekly topic with your peers and the online coaches and have a discussion about the state of play regarding what you will learn about that week.

- You will then acquire knowledge through an interactive self-guided learning module that contains readings, questions, quizzes, case studies, videos, lectures and tools.
- You will be required to take knowledge tests throughout the course to ensure that you have grasped the core elements of the learning modules.
- Live webinars with staff, advisors and consultants will be conducted on a weekly basis as a get together to dig deeper into the weekly topic, force reflection and spark innovation.

WHAT WILL I BE ABLE TO DO?

As a trainer, this online course will give you the opportunity to experiment with active learning methodologies and improve your pedagogical skills. You will not only get high quality knowledge and shared experience from ITCILO' staff, advisors and consultants but you will also design your own learning module using active learning methodologies, at your own pace.

WHAT CONTENT DOES THE COURSE COVER?

- An overview of active learning approaches
- Tips on writing learning objectives and curating training content
- A guide to facilitation in the training room that enhances active learning
- Tools to design your own active learning module step by step
