

Editorial

Now that the summer is coming to an end and most of us are back at work, we hope to return to a typical working year – one in which the virus is under control, and we can welcome you again to our activities. In the meantime, we will kick off the season with a new format webinar – ETUI Conversations – in which we discuss a topic that is currently on the EU political agenda with a couple of speakers who shed light on it from different angles. For a fair and effective industrial climate transition

Europe's industrial base needs to undergo a swift and persistent transformation towards carbon neutrality and circularity, but this transition must happen in a fair and socially just manner. In this working paper, we evaluate the support mechanisms for heavy industry which have been put in place over the past 20 years, comparing the state of play in the Netherlands, Germany and Belgium.

(Post-)pandemic employment dynamics in a comparative perspective

This policy brief explores potential employment dynamics across European industries by drawing on past sectoral trends and the latest macroeconomic forecast results up to 2026, taken from the IMF and the European Commission. Using this information, employment forecasts by industry are generated for European countries and the EU27.
