Editorial

A distinguishing feature of the ETUI is that we not only produce and collect knowledge relevant to the world of work, but we also organise and support training and learning activities for trade union members and their leaders. Our Education Department offers a unique programme of European trade union courses, all in a transnational and multicultural setting, aimed at strengthening the European dimension in the work of trade unions and deepening their sense of belonging to the same community. Philippe Pochet, General Director ETUI

Hot off the press: General strike in Belgium, days of demonstrations in Greece, manifestations that took place at the beginning of the month in Spain, call for a strike in several sectors in the United Kingdom, but also in Germany or even in the Czech Republic: the Europeans, harshly hit by the rising cost of living and grappling with high energy prices as winter approaches, are crying out for help from their governments.

Listen to the interview with Philippe Pochet, General director of the European Trade Union Institute for Radio Canada (only in French) here and watch the news item on France 24 (also only in French) here.

Launch of new toolkit for online training facilitators

In a joint endeavour, the ITCILO, ETUI and IIEP-UNESCO have recently launched the Digital Facilitation Toolkit, a new website offering practical guidance on how to design and deliver online events. The aim of this toolkit is to cope with the constantly evolving training practices in online settings and to provide some clarity on the different dimensions of online facilitation.
